Notes and sources

In setting out sources of information used in this claim book, the following abbreviations are used:

AAAS	Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science
AIAS	Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, Canberra
CRS	Commonwealth Record Series*
CSIRO	Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organisation
NLC	Northern Land Council, Darwin
N.T.	Northern Territory
N.T.A.	Northern Territory Administration
R.A.I.	Royal Anthropological Institute, London
S.A.	South Australia
SAA	South Australian Archives, Adelaide
S.W.J.	Southwestern Journal of Anthropology

Copies of Government Residents' Reports of the Northern Territory of South Australia are held in the National Library, Canberra and the holdings are apparently complete. See Douglas 1870, or Millner 1870 in the alphabetical list here for a detailed reference.

Annual Reports of the Welfare Branch, Northern Territory Administration, are available in the libraries of the Department of Aboriginal Affairs in Canberra and Darwin.

The archival and other sources we consulted are listed in chapter one, in the section titled "History of the claim area".

* The Australian Archives Commonwealth Record Series are identified by a capital letter followed by a number, for example, A1, A3 F1, etc.

Newspapers: A listing of Australian newspapers is published by the Australian National Library, Canberra.

Details of most journals cited may be found in the publication "Series in Australian Libraries Social Sciences and Humanities" (SALSAH), available in most libraries.

Copies of the periodical Banji, published by the Gwalwa Daraniki Association, Darwin, are held by the Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, Canberra.

Published books etc. are generally available and so we do not list here where they can be located. We suggest, however, that for items that are difficult to find, the reader should consult first the National Library of Australia and the Mitchell Library, Sydney.
